THESE dates show eighteen moons becover many changes in men's minds, po "ticularly " when the moon 's at full."

On the first of these dates Mr. Seward, as Secretary of State to the new American Administration, wrote to our Minisyter at Paris, Mr. Dayton, about the Insurrection which had just then become a war, and instructing him what represenlations to make to the Government of France. And on the subject of Slavery. assuaring that the French Government would feel the same moddling interest in that matter that we do, he told the Minister to say that whether the Revolution succeeded or fail, the condition of slavery would remain just the same. But here is an extract from his letter:

The condition of slavery in the several "States will reach just the same whether it (the revolution) succeed or fail.
